Proclamation at Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Council of Ministers has issued a proclamation to the French people. Among other things it says: "A great misfortune has come upon our country. After three days' heroic struggle against 300,000 of the enemy, the army at Sedan have been made prisoners. The Emperor has also been made prisoner. But this will not shake our courage. Paris is to-day in a complete state of defense. The military forces will be organized in a few days. Your patriotism, your union, your energy, will save France."

In the Corps Legislatif, Jules Favre declared they were unanimous for defense until death, which was received with great applause. He concluded by attacking the Imperial power and proposing to place extraordinary power in the hands of Gen. Trochu. Palikao and the Chamber protested.

In the Senate, Jerome David said "Let us defend Paris on the walls and in the streets. We will bury ourselves under the ruins of the city in its defense."

Number of Troops Engaged in Recent Operations.

LONDON, Sept. 4th.—The number of Prussian troops engaged, as estimated by Gen. Von Moltke, was 250,000; of the French, 120,000. McMahon, although wounded, had command in chief on the French side. Von Moltke, the Crown Prince, and Prince of Saxony, commanded the Prussians.

Confirmatory Dispatches Received at Washington.

Disastrous Fire at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4th.—The most destructive conflagration which has visited this city for years, occurred this evening, involving the entire destruction of one of the finest blocks in the city. The fire broke out at 5 P. M., in the fifth story, or loft, in Butler & Co.'s paper warehouse, on Wabash avenue, between Washington and Madison streets—being the south store in the elegant block owned by John Drake, of the Tremont House, J. V. Farrell & Co., and Thatcher Bros., the buildings all being five stories high with a basement and French roof. The fire spread with fearful rapidity to Farwell & Co.'s immense wholesale drug store adjoining, and in an incredibly short space of time both buildings were wrapped in flames. A large number of the employes of Farwell & Co. and others, went into the store, and were engaged on the first and second floors, and were getting out the goods shortly before a portion of wall fell, carrying down both floors, and it is believed not all of them got out.

From Farwell & Co.'s the fire spread to Drake's block, one of the most magnificent structures in the city, occupied by Kirkland, Ordway & Co., wholesale boot and shoe dealers, and by Smith & Nixon, and Lyon & Healy, music dealers; and, although this building did not burn so rapidly as the others, at this hour (midnight) nothing but the north and west walls remain.

Losses, so far as ascertained, are as follows: J. V. Farwell & Co., $1,100,000 to $1,500,000, insurance $900,000; Kirkland, Ordway & Co., $150,000; Smith, Nixon, Lyon & Healy, $150,000, insurance $75,000; Butler & Co., $25,000, insurance $10,000. Loss in buildings $150,000.

The Origin of the "Marseillaise" War Song.

There was at this time (1792) a young officer of artillery in the garrison at Strasbourg. His name was Rouget de Lisle. He was born in Lons le Saulnier, in the Jura, a country of reveries and energy, as mountainous regions always are. This young man loved war as a soldier; the revolution as a thinker. By his verses and his music he lightened the tediousness of the garrison. Generally sought on account of his double talent as a musician and a poet, he became a familiar visitor at the house of an Asiatic patriot, Dietrich, Mayor of Strasbourg. The wife and daughters of Dietrich shared his enthusiasm for patriotism and revolution. They loved the young officer. They inspired his heart, his poetry, and his music, and trusting to the early lispings of his genius, they were the first to execute his scarcely expressed thoughts.

It was in the winter of 1792 famine reigned in Strasburg, the Dietrich family were poor, and their table was frugal, but it was always hospitable to Rouget. One day when there was nothing on the board but some garrison bread, and a few slices of ham, Dietrich looked at DeLisle with melancholy calmness, said to him: Abundance is wanting at our banquet, but what matters that when neither enthusiasm is wanting at our civic feasts, nor courage in the hearts of our soldiers? I have still a bottle of wine left in my cellar; let it be brought up and let us drink to liberty and our country. There will soon be a patriotic celebration at Strasbourg; may these last drops inspire DeLisle with one of those hymns which convey to the soul of the people the intoxication from whence they proceed.

The young girls applauded, brought in the wine, and filled the glasses of their aged father and the young officer until the liquor was exhausted. It was midnight. The night was cold. De Lisle was in a dreamy state; his heart was touched; his head was heated. The cold overpowered him, and he tottered to his lonely room slowly, seeking inspiration now in his patriotic soul, now in his harpsichord, sometimes composing the air before the words, and sometimes the words before the air, and so combining them, in his thoughts that he himself did not know whether the notes or the verses came first, and that it was impossible to separate the poetry from the music or the sentiment from the expression. He sang all and set down nothing.

"Overpowered with the sublime inspiration, De Lisle went to sleep on the harpsichord, and did not wake up until day. He recollected the song of the previous evening with a difficulty like that with which we recall the impression of a dream. He now set down the words and music, and ran with them to Dietrich, whom he found in the garden. The wife and daughters of the old patriot had not yet risen. Dietrich awakened them, and invited some friends who were as passionately fond of music as himself, and were capable of executing De Lisle's composition. Her eldest daughter played the accompaniment, while Rouget sang.

At the first stanzas all faces turned pale: at the second, tears ran down every cheek: and the last all the madness of enthusiasm broke forth. Dietrich, his wife, his daughters, and the young officer fell weeping into each other's arms—the hymn of the country was found. It was destined, alas! to be also the hymn of terror. A few months afterward the unfortunate Dietrich went to the scaffold to the very notes which had their origin on his own hearth, in the heart of his friend, and in the voice of his children.

Cornelius O'Dowd tells a good story of the elder Mathews, whose great affliction in life was that he was never able to lose anything. Walking one day with a well-dressed man of fashion, Mathews discovered that his gloves were in the shabbiest possible condition. They were torn, soiled, and worse still, had been mended. Eager to divest himself of such obnoxious "properties," he rolled them up furtively together, and as they were passing over Westminster bridge at the time, he seized a favorable moment to jerk them into the Thames. Like a man who relieved his bosom, he strode along head erect, and conscience easy, but scarcely had he reached the Southwalk side when a waterman accosted him with the fatal gloves in his hand. "I saw your honor when you dropped them, and had a sharp bit of a row to catch them with the falling tide."

Decision in U. S. District Court.

When the wheat of two parties is intermixed and confused, by mutual consent they become owners in common of the grain so mixed in proportion to their respective shares of the bulk or quantity.

When the goods of two parties are mixed by one without the consent of the other, if they be grain or other articles of equal value, the other party is only entitled to his proportionate share of the common quantity.

This is a controversy submitted to the Court upon an agreed case pursuant to Chap. 2 Title XIV of the Code.

From the case stated it appears:

I. That on March 10, 1870, said Warren filed his petition in bankruptcy in this Court, and that on March 14 he was duly adjudged a bankrupt, and that afterwards the defendant was appointed assignee of said bankrupt. That in September, 1869, the plaintiff delivered to said Warren 221 bushels of merchantable wheat, for which the latter gave his receipt as follows:

"McMinnville, Or., Sept. 22, 1869. Commercial Mills. Received of E. M. Adams 13,260 lbs wheat, equal to 221 bushels.

(Signed) E. T. WARREN, FRANK."

That said Warren received said wheat as a warehouseman and put it in a granary then owned by him and situate near his grist mill aforesaid, and with the knowledge and consent of the plaintiff intermixed and confused the same with a large quantity of other wheat, not the property of the plaintiff, and that prior to said March 10, said Warren allowed all the wheat to be removed from said granary, but that none of said wheat was ever returned to plaintiff, nor did he ever receive any satisfaction therefor, except for 11 48-100 bushels.

II. That the defendant as assignee aforesaid became possessed of several hundred bushels of wheat stored in bulk in another granary near the mill aforesaid, which on May 3 he sold at public auction, the plaintiff then and there protesting against the sale of so much of said wheat as would be equal in quantity to the number of bushels stored by him with Warren as aforesaid, and that at the time of said sale said wheat was worth sixty cents per bushel in coin.

Upon this statement of facts, which is to be deemed a special verdict (Code, 203) the plaintiff claims that the defendant is liable to him in the sum of $126 12 damages for the conversion of the wheat delivered as aforesaid and not returned or accounted for. On the other hand the defendant denies that he is liable to the plaintiff in any sum.

The case was submitted without argument, and I am not therefore specially advised as to the particular questions of law which the parties to the controversy deem involved in it and necessary to its determination. It is also understood from a remark of counsel for the defendant that there are other controversies existing between the defendant and other persons growing out of the deposit of wheat with Warren under similar circumstances, and that this is intended or expected to be a test case. For these reasons I will consider whatever questions of law that appear to arise upon the facts.

And first, as to the character in which the defendant is liable, if at all. In the title of the case stated, he is described as assignee of Warren, from which it may be implied that the plaintiff seeks to charge him in his character or relation of assignee and not personally or absolutely. But the defendant is not liable to be sued as assignee until the supposed creditor has proved his debt, and that proof has been rejected by the District Judge (B. Act S. 24). In the latter case the creditor may bring an action against the assignee as such in the Circuit Court to establish his claim, but in either event the creditor only receives his pro rata of the bankrupt's estate.

Besides, the facts stated show that the defendant, if liable to the plaintiff at all, is liable personally and not as assignee. The gravemen of the complaint is, that the defendant sold and disposed of wheat in the north granary which the plaintiff claimed to be in some sort his property and thereby wrongfully converted the same to his own use, to the damage of the plaintiff the sum claimed. The estate of the bankrupt is not answerable for the tortious acts of the defendant because he is the assignee thereof, or professed to be acting as assignee in the matter complained of.

The law arising upon the facts stated concerning the deposit of wheat is well settled. The plaintiff's wheat having been mixed and confused with that in Warren's possession, with the mutual consent of the parties, the plaintiff became tenant in common with Warren of the bulk of grain produced by the mixture, and his interest therein was in proportion to the number of bushels deposited by him. Practically the result would be the same in this case if the wheat had been mixed without the plaintiff's consent, because being presumed to be of equal value, the plaintiff would not be injured if he received the number of bushels of wheat deposited by him, although not the specific grains so deposited—2 Black. Com. 405, 2 Kent Com. 364, 11 Me. 495, 2 John C. 108, Story Bail. S. 40.

But it appears that Warren removed or allowed to be removed all the grain in this granary before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Particularly what became of it does not appear. Probably it was manufactured into flour and disposed of by Warren long before the filing of the petition. But the enquiry is not material, so long as there is no evidence to show that it is the identical grain sold by the defendant contrary to the protest of the plaintiff. Upon this point the case stated is silent and no inference in favor of the plaintiff can be made from the facts set forth. This being so, the plaintiff, so far as appears, had no interest in the specific grain disposed of by the defendant. His only interest was that of a general creditor of the estate. It must be presumed from the facts stated that the plaintiff's grain was converted by Warren to his own use. If so he thereby became liable to the plaintiff for its value. This liability is a claim against the estate and provable as a debt in bankruptcy.

In conclusion, it is sufficient to say, that the defendant did not personally incur any liability to the plaintiff by the sale of the wheat in question, because the plaintiff does not appear to have had any specific interest or property in it. The claim of the plaintiff is for damages in money for the value of wheat deposited with the bankrupt and by him converted to his own use and not accounted for. Such a claim is a debt or demand provable against the bankrupt's estate and for which the assignee as such cannot be sued, except the same be rejected by the District Judge on objections by the assignee, as prescribed in section 23 of the bankrupt act.

Let judgment be entered that the plaintiff take nothing upon the case stated and that the defendant recover his costs and expenses to be taxed.

DEADY, J.

The most profound grief of the Emperor over his defeats will be because of their effect upon the prospects of Napoleon IV., who, it now appears, will probably turn out to be as distinguished a soldier and monarch as Napoleon II. was.

An advertisement in a New Orleans paper thus sets forth the beauties of a Louisiana village: "The people in the vicinity are peaceable and loyal, and the range for cattle and hogs unsurpassed in America."

WAR MISCELLANY.

Some of the Paris journals, only five weeks ago, headed all their war correspondence with the words "From Paris to Berlin."

The Army and Navy Journal says that "telegrams have come from Paris since the reverses on the Rhine, contracting for arms in this country."

The interpretation in English of the names of the German commanders is sufficiently curious. For instance, Steinmetz means a stone-cutter; Falkenstein, the falcon rock; Manteufel, man devil, and Eulenburg, the castle of owls. The names are Gothic enough for the dark ages.

A special correspondent at Chalons recently wrote: "The military trains are encumbered with enormous quantities of officers' baggage. Supply trains are delayed. The trains from Metz were filled with the Emperor's personal outfit—carriages, cooks, beds, sofas, and all the luxuries. The soldiers meantime are on half rations."

It is announced that the Londoner who wagered before a gun was fired, that the French troops would be in Berlin before thirty days, has won, and that the stakes have been awarded to him. It is true that they went there as captives; but in making the wager it was not stipulated whether they should enter the Capital of Prussia as conquerors or conquered!

A late copy of the Journal of Nancy says that which wounds us more than all else, is the condition of the unfortunate farmers, dwellers in our own country. Our tears flow at the sight of long lines of wagons laden with oats, hay and provisions of every kind, to be given over to the Prussian army; the fine horses which were to prepare the earth for the seed of the future harvest have been harnessed to the Prussian cannon. Since everything is scattered and destroyed on this day, after harvest, it equally follows that a remarkable barrenness of the country must ensue. The difficulties of the entire year are crowded into one moment; the ruin is complete and unspeakable; long years will be necessary to repair the damages of these few days' invasion.

On the 28th of August in the Corps Legislatif of France, Larabie, after a communication from the Minister of War, giving the details of the occupation of the country by the Prussians, said if certain villages and towns which were invaded surrendered too quickly it was hardly their fault. The Government, not however the present Cabinet, with a strange lack of forethought, had courteously refused to arm the people of Alsace, Loraine and Champagne, thus betraying a lack of confidence in the people which had cost the country dear, for had the peasants, who are good marksmen, been armed, the army of the Prince Royal of Prussia would not have so easily crossed the Vosges, where our men, hidden from view, could have inflicted such losses upon them that France would not have been compelled to abandon her second line of defenses.

A Paris dispatch of the 29th of August gives this: The Minister of War announces that he can arm an immense force of the National Guard, in addition to those already under arms, with the guns now in the reserve depot. The Minister of Agriculture and Commerce is wonderfully active. It is estimated that there is at least 1,000 days' subsistence in the city. Besides this, the Minister has collected at Paris 2,000,000 quintals of rice, and an immense quantity of potatoes and fresh vegetables of all sorts. There has also been collected 100,000 beeves, 500,000 sheep, and all the grain and forage necessary for their temporary keeping. Salt, spices, coffee, sugar, and other articles of that nature, are also stored in sufficient quantities for the subsistence of Paris during three months, more than 60,000,000 rations. At the entry ports are great quantities of salted fish and pork, together with straw, oats and hay for the necessary subsistence of horses, as well as those of the army and private people. Munitions of war are plentiful.

The New American Steel.

(From the New York Tribune.)

The fertile, thrifty, wealthy old county of York, Pennsylvania, lies across the Susquehanna from Lancaster, and is watered by the Codorus, Conewago, and other tributaries of that broad-bosomed river. The rich valley of the Codorus and its tributaries is underlaid by a deposit of the favorite iron ore known as the brown hematite, which, though but little iron has yet been smelted in this unprogressive county, is largely mined and sent away to mix with other and generally poorer ores—immense quantities of it being daily sent to the great works of David Thomas and others in the distant valley of the Lehigh. From this valley there rises, in the township of North Codorus, a range of rounded, sloping hills, which have been long known to contain and in good part to consist of a peculiar micaceous ore, but little success and no profit has attended its conversion into iron, since it yields but 30 to 35 per cent. of metal, and this of poor quality. At length, it was ascertained—more by luck, we believe, than by scientific induction—that this unpromising ore, being mixed with middling pig iron in an ordinary reverberatory furnace at the rate of one to six, would produce, by the ordinary puddling process, a pure steel of admirable quality and remarkably uniform in character.

We visited on Monday the range of hills, in question—estimated to contain seventeen millions of tons of this unique ore—and looked into a dozen different shafts or drifts which have been sunk or run into the hill nearest Hanover Junction, on the Northern Central Railroad, distant two miles. The branch road to Gettysburg runs at the southern base of the range. The ore, up to thousands of tons per day, can be mined and loaded directly into the cars for Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, at a cost of $1 per ton. Being thrown down by blast or pick, mainly in the form of boulders of medium tenacity it will in time be shipped as ballast, and so transported to European as well as American furnaces. The owners of the mine have just completed at York a puddling furnace and rolling-mill, wherein we witnessed the conversion of medium Pennsylvania pig iron, worth $30 per ton, into steel that would certainly be cheap at $150 per ton. For ten tons of this steel the material required would be eleven tons of pig iron costing $300, and two tons of the Codorus ore, costing $20—together $320. And ten tons of bituminous coal, costing $30, and 250 dollars for labor and all other expenses, and a very choice steel rail ought to be made, by the help of this ore, at a cost of $60 per ton.

We call the attention of railroad men and all interested in metallurgy, to this wonderful discovery. They can test its merits in an ordinary reverberatory furnace, by simply buying a few tons of the Codorus ore, and attempting by its aid to convert ordinary pig into choice steel at a single heat by a simple process with which they are perfectly familiar. If they have the requisite machinery for rolling them, they will of course next try their hand at converting their blooms into rails. But they are not required to buy mines, nor to erect new works, nor to take anything on trust. If they doubt that steel is made as above set forth, York is not far off, and the furnace aforesaid is spacious and open to all comers. Their own eyes are not likely to mislead them. That the steel made as aforesaid, at a cost which cannot reach $80 per ton is of choice quality, we were assured by Col. Boyer of Pottsville, who has no interest in this discovery, and never visited the mines till Monday, but who has used the product in tool-making for his machine-shops, where only the very best steel will answer. His statements need no confirmation, but have received it.

We count the Bessemer process superseded by this discovery, whereby a perfect steel is produced with no risk of failure, and at a cost considerably less than that of the famous British process. And we trust that other and equally important triumphs in the mixture and manipulation of ores will derive their impulse from this.

TUESDAY MORNING SEPTEMBER [illegible] 1870

Curtis' Life of Daniel Webster

The publication of a Life of Daniel Webster written by a competent hand deserves notice as an event in our national history. Some time ago we noted the appearance of George Ticknor Curtis' Life of the great man. The second volume has now appeared and the work is complete. The capacity of Mr Curtis for a work of this description is acknowledged. Even from a hasty survey of a portion of it we do not hesitate to say that it is by this work that George Ticknor Curtis will hereafter be best known.

A Life of Webster opens up topics of surpassing interest in our political and national history. A war of ideas preceded our late war of arms, or rather the latter was a continuation of the former. Webster indeed was not the author of the national idea which triumphed in the late struggle over the theory of State sovereignty and national disintegration but he was its great champion whose eloquence and logic riveted it in the hearts of the people. He it was who popularized the idea of nationality. Without him it is safe to say that the popular mind would never have been wrought up to the height required by the exigencies of the late rebellion. His great speeches on the origin, nature and philosophy of our Government took hold irresistibly of the public mind. Their more noted passages were committed to memory by every school boy. Such was the charm not only of their great truths but of their literary attractions, that they found their way into a multitude of books for the instruction and delight of the young. The consequence was that American youth from their very cradles were taught the idea embodied in the famous words, "Liberty and Union, now and forever one and inseparable." Their minds became imbued with it, the generation among whom these doctrines had been inculcated grew to maturity, the rebellion broke out and then took place that grand uprising of the people which vindicated national authority and consigned to perpetual death the destructive dogma that each State should be a law unto itself and that the Constitution of the United States did not create a nation.

The great idea which Webster more than all other men, had thus fastened in the hearts of the people, had, indeed, been ably elucidated before his greatest speeches were delivered, but it had not been presented in a way to reach the popular heart and become a part of the soul and being of the nation. Great men there had been, whose conception of the true theory of our national Government was quite as clear as Webster's and whose arguments were quite as unanswerable. Greatest among them was Hamilton who has left upon the structure of our Government and in his political writings the impress of the most sagacious and penetrating mind in our history. There, too, was Jay who had done much to establish a nationality in place of the old and loose confederation, and to vindicate the change to a national government. Marshall also had illuminated every subject relating to the constitutional nature of our government which he had touched. But the efforts of these great men were wholly argumentative and while they would convince they did not captivate. It was reserved for Daniel Webster, equal to them all in logic, and immeasurably superior to them all in the power to reach the popular heart, and to awaken enthusiasm where others had only been able to convince the reason—it was reserved for Webster to prepare the nation for the trial through which it was to pass; and how well he did it the events of the last ten years shall forever tell.

A great man is the product of an age struggling toward a great idea or a great achievement. In Daniel Webster we had both the blossom and the fruit of an age that was aiming at the solution and vindication of the true national idea in the United States. Through him that idea found its highest form of expression. He was as truly a product of that time—and its highest product—as Shakspeare was of the dramatic period of England.

A political party under the lead of Jefferson and his lieutenants had grown up in this country on a theory utterly inimical to national principles. Much of the error that it propagated came from the loose doctrines of the great revolution in France. After the old confederation had been expressly set aside and the present Constitution creating a national government had been adopted, Jefferson and his associates set up the idea that the government still existed only by the consent of each State, that in fact we still had the same government under the Constitution that we had under the Confederation. This idea was directly antagonistic to every national principle. It was contested for many years in the forum, and Webster, as the advocate of national principles, utterly crushed every opponent. Some years later the antagonism of the same ideas resulted in a clash of arms. But Webster's logic had prepared the public mind for it, and our soldiers on the field of battle sustained the principles which Webster had triumphantly sustained in the field of argument.

The publication of a Life of Webster now for the first time fully and ably presented, is therefore an event of national importance. The two volumes are brought out in a shape at once convenient and attractive. It is a national work, and the American citizen should not long be without it.

Talking about the chances of France being able to continue the war, the New York Herald in an article published even before the last great disaster, said: "The last ditch business is literally played out among rational men in our day and we have no reason to believe the great French nation so utterly insane as to invoke utter ruin upon their country because a system of continual exaggeration has entailed upon them some reverses which still leaves their military honor untarnished. The whole world can plainly see that France has been misled with reference to the material strength and condition of her armies but the courage, endurance and spirit of her troops never shone forth more splendidly than in the present unfortunate campaign. To this their antagonists bear willing and constant testimony. We trust that our great and noble ally will display as much wisdom and dignity as she has shown unflinching valor."

It is the general judgment of mankind that the Germans were unjustly assailed by France at the commencement of the war. Now that Germany has proved her military superiority and established her right to control her own destinies independent of outside interference she should not take advantage of her position to prosecute a war of conquest. Nor is it likely that she will. She has had right on her side so far, and will not overstep its bounds.

The Situation in France

France through the [illegible] of her leaders [illegible] misfortunes. Imperialism is at an end and the probability is now the people will [illegible] a Republic unless, indeed a king shall be forced on them by German arms. France is now in a position to elicit the sympathy of the world. The New York Tribune which has all along favored the German cause, in a recent article said: "For the French people [illegible] the military [illegible] for the brave men who under [illegible] leadership still exhibits on every field its historic [illegible] is not now [illegible] cannot be any other feeling in American hearts than one of profound pity and admiration." And again in speaking of the heroism of the French soldiers and the incapacity of their leaders the same paper says: "There have been few campaigns recorded in history in which the display of generalship by the leaders has appeared in such marked contrast to the valor and endurance of the soldiers as this which in a fortnight destroyed the grand army of France and left the defense of the country to the reserves and citizens."

Truly all people must admire the heroism of the French who notwithstanding the unparalleled calamities into which the incompetency of their government has betrayed them show yet no sign of wavering in their devotion to their country. But they should now seek peace. It is natural that they should be maddened by their betrayal but reason should now teach them the only wise course is to seek peace with an adversary who can afford to be and doubtless will be, magnanimous.

France cannot continue the struggle. True, she has men enough and resources enough but how can she organize in the presence of so powerful an enemy? She has no army now that can meet the German armies in the field. Undisciplined masses can accomplish little. France no doubt might still make a desperate resistance, but she would only aggravate her misfortunes. King William is now in a position where he might very properly offer peace and the whole world would applaud the act. France made war upon him, but now that he has gained so splendid and unexampled a triumph it would be very graceful in him to evince a disposition for peace.

A late dispatch from New York says the feeling in the produce market is that breadstuffs will continue to improve. It is agreed that the fall of Napoleon will certainly be followed by grave troubles, that the seating of an Orleans Prince on the the throne by foreign bayonets cannot create a permanent government. A French Republic means a Republic in Spain, the expulsion of the Pope revolutionary troubles in Italy and eventually in Germany. All those convulsions will involve time and perhaps render the continent a vast battlefield in which all the people will participate. Meantime while production ceases and waste goes on, the United States and Russia must feed central and western Europe. It is upon this theory that most of the leading New York operators in breadstuffs base their calculation on high prices this fall and winter.

Whatever the French people may say about continuing the war, and however laudably patriotic they may be to defend their country and vindicate its name they must soon see that it is utter madness to think of opposing the immense German armies now in their country and flushed with victory. Of regular troops the French can hardly muster now a force one third as large as that of the Germans. The contest is hopeless, and prudence as well as true rational bravery would urge the Provisional Government to make an effort to obtain peace.

Most of our French fellow citizens last evening were jubilant over the news that a Provisional Government has been established in France, with a prospect of a Republic. A dispatch direct from Paris was kindly furnished us by the French Club in which the formation of the Provisional Government and other news was announced, but we do not repeat it as the whole is contained in our regular dispatch.

POLITICAL NOTES

Col Stanton of the Paymaster's office, has just completed the settlement of the last of the claims on account of expense of reconstruction in Mississippi and Arkansas. The whole cost in the former State was about $42[illegible] 000, and in the latter $175,000.

Gen Hiram Walbridge a well known politician of New York, published a few days ago a letter in favor of the renomination of Gen Grant for President, and the nomination of Horace Greeley for Governor of New York. Considerable importance is attached in political circles to the letter.

A Chicago Tribune's New York special (Aug 29,) writes: "John Morrissey, Sheriff O'Brien, Congressman Fox, the leaders of the young Democracy have raised a fund of $100,000 to start a newspaper organ. It is to be called the Free Press, and will make its first appearance on Wednesday next, as an evening paper. Its policy will be deadly hostility to Governor Hoffman. It will devote itself energetically to the exposure of the corruption of Tammany."

The Democratic leaders in Maine are taking the advice of the New York World, and accepting the inevitable logic of events. Mr E F Pillsbury who made the opening speech at the recent State Convention, is reported as having said "the negro question is dead and played out. It sleeps its last sleep." The stock resolution on the negro's incapacity for self government, and the terrible results certain to flow from his admission to the ballot is also missing from the platform of the Convention. How much stronger the party would be everywhere, if it would thus discard dead issues, and put itself abreast of the advanced sentiment of the age.

The ordinary expenses of the Government, for civil and miscellaneous purposes are officially reported at $[illegible]3 237,668 [illegible]8 while the extraordinary or those called for by the interest on the public debt pensions Indians war and navy are $238 [illegible] 382 62. This shows the absurdity of the charges of extravagance raised against the present Administration and that the real expenses of administering the government have scarcely increased at all. For the extra expenditures, President Grant is in no way chargeable. They have grown out of causes that he had a large hand in suppressing but not any in creating. The Democracy know better or ought to who caused these vast additional outgoes than any one else and have only to look at their own acts for a full explanation. To charge them on the Republican party, is little less than infamous.

The Mexican Claims Commission was to have met again in Washington on the 1st of September. Thirty claims against Mexico and five against the United States are ready for a hearing. Eight hundred and forty claims against the United States and nine hundred and fifty against Mexico have been filed. It is understood that the Commission will decide to reject all claims arising from injuries caused on one side by the French or Mexicans in revolt against the liberal government of Mexico and on the other by citizens of the United States in rebellion. This decision will greatly reduce the number of claims before the Commission. It is also said that the Commission will decide that claims arising under contracts are not within the terms of the convention. This will dispose of a large number of cases.

It is estimated that the Iowa wheat crop of 1870 was gathered from two millions of acres, and that it will amount to twenty four million bushels. This is about twenty four bushels to every person in the State.

Dispatches from Paris

PARIS, Sept 5—3 P M. Rochefort has been liberated.

The people are in a state of extraordinary excitement. From time to time Gambetta addresses them exhorting order. Soldiers of all regiments mix among the people unarmed, and shouting Vive la Republique from entrances and windows. Soldiers salute the people.

At 1 o'clock P M the flag was lowered on the Tuilleries. Placards have been posted in various places: "Death to Thieves." Mobs continue to tear down signs containing Imperial arms and medals. In some cases people have climbed up the highest stories to tear from the theaters the word "Imperial."

Direct Paris telegrams report a great popular excitement over the announcement of the capitulation and capture of the Emperor.

It was reported that a Dictatorship would be pronounced by the Corps at a secret meeting. Crowds of people collected anxiously awaiting the news. No violence had occurred up to midnight. The Boulevards are densely thronged but the people were orderly.

Dispatch from Brussels.

LONDON, September 5—A Brussels dispatch says twelve thousand French troops have crossed the frontier and surrendered.

A demand upon the Montmedy garrison for surrender was refused.

Later from Paris—A Provisional Government Formed

PARIS, September 5—3 P M—It is now impossible to reach the Corps Legislatif owing to the enormous crowds surrounding the building. It is reported that the vote of Decheance carried by Yeas 185 Nays, none.

People are wild with excitement, rushing through the streets displaying placards with the vote of the Corps Legislatif inscribed thereon. Shouts of Vive la Republique are heard on all sides. Regiments passing into the city are received by the populace with shouts of Vive la Ligne! Vive la Republique. The National Guard reversed arms as regular troops, and passed as a sign of amity. Troops are singing "Mourir pour la Patrie."

The scene is one of indescribable excitement.

Later—Crowds are beginning to tear down the Imperial arms from the front of shops. There are fears that this may lead to serious trouble, as the National Guard are not inclined to permit any disorders.

1 30 P M—The city now presents one of the most imposing popular displays ever witnessed. One hundred thousand armed citizens are marching to the Corps Legislatif and surrounding the building. Frenzied hurrahs of countless masses filling every avenue leading to the Hall are heard. No symptoms of disorder yet; only unanimous expressions of popular will. Before the residence of Gen Trochu there is a compact mass of people awaiting the return of the Governor. Around the Tuilleries there is a strong military force guarding it against any possible display of popular indignation. Hundreds of thousands of citizens are still passing towards the Corps Legislatif, and the Place de la Concorde is one mass of human beings. Rumors of all kinds are in circulation. It is impossible to ascertain the foundations. One sentiment seems to be paramount—resistance to invasion. The Garde Nationale say order must be preserved. The people evince little desire to create trouble. All seem overjoyed at the vote of the Chambers.

Later—4 30 P M—At the departure of the Deputies from the Corps Legislatif scenes of enthusiasm took place around the building. The National Guard fraternized with the troops and people. Thousands of Guards rushed into the Hall, but were persuaded to retire by M Gambetta, who seems to have great influence over the people. Crowds outside are singing the "Marseillaise" and shouting "Vive la Republique." There were no dangerous elements visible until the crowd reached the Rue Castiglione, where they began tearing down Imperial Arms and tearing from flags of the National Guard the Golden Eagles of France, and from walls and signs medals bearing Imperial effigies. Soldiers have also joined in these demonstrations. The National Guard have beat to arms to repress disorder if it takes a more serious turn. More quiet citizens are becoming impressed with the idea that there may be danger, as the mob is becoming more and more excited.

PARIS, Sept 4—3 P M—There is much confusion in the city and the press is immense. There is such a crowd about the Corps Legislatif that it is impossible to get a faithful account of the business transacted by the Deputies. It is now reported on good authority that after the vote the majority retired. The members of the Gauche and Centre Gauche remained consulting and organized a provisional government, naming the following persons: Jules Favre Gambetta Jules Simon Keratry Picard Pittean and Jules Ferri.

General News

LONDON, Sept 4—Verdun and Montmedy hold out against the Prussians. The bombardment of Strasbourg continues vigorously. Much damage has been inflicted. The Cathedral is partially burned and the wonderful clock and chime bells in the tower are badly injured.

Latest from Paris.

PARIS Sept 5, 5 P M—McMahon is reported dead.

Members of the Provisional Government who were cited to appear and deliberate are now assembled at the Hotel de Ville. Henri Rochefort is liberated and assisting at this meeting. Herather is appointed Prefect of Police vice M Pietri, and Etienne Argo Mayor of Paris. The people outside the buildings are in a state of extraordinary excitement and from time to time Gambetta addressed them exhorting order. It is remarked that the soldiers of all the regiments mix among the people unarmed shouting "Vive la Republique."

BRUSSELS Sept 5 Noon—It is positively asserted that the Emperor arrived at Bouillon, escorted by a detachment of Prussians. [illegible]burg is selected as his place of detention.

RICH QUARTZ DISCOVERY NEAR VICTORIA.—Victoria has gone wild with excitement from the report of a rich discovery of quartz on Cedar hill, near that place. The Standard of the 3d says:

Piper and Cargotch the discoverers went over to the land office and secured their claims, and in company with about twenty others in buggies proceeded to the place where they had found the specimens the day before. They took tools with them and broke off several pieces which they brought to town. The gold is visible with the naked eye in several of the pieces. This morning Mr Cargotich will start early with blasting powder to put in a blast which will test the ledge more thoroughly. There are a large number of experienced miners who intend visiting the place to day for the purpose of testing the lead and see if it is well defined.

The little steamer City of Ragusa has been spoken by three vessels the last time August 22d, in latitude 42 30 longitude 60 00 all well, sixteen days out from Queenstown, for New York.

The majority of the Bitter Root Indians have ceased to depend on wild roots for their winter subsistence and some of them boast highly cultivated farms. But they still consume large quantities of camas, a nutritious and succulent tuber which has become a regular article of food in some white families, many preferring it to the potato.

Victor, the war chief of the Pen D'Oreilles, Nez Perces and Kootenai Indians died recently while returning to his home in Bitter Root valley from the Yellowstone. He was over 80 years old. Throughout his long and eventful life, beginning with a cordial welcome to the Lewis and Clarke explorers when in his boyhood, he was the steadfast friend of the whites by whom in his declining years he was highly respected. Father De Smet, in his great work on the Mountain Missions honors the old Chief by embellishing the title page with his portrait. He was probably the wealthiest Indian in America being the possessor of hundreds of horses and cattle, and a well cultivated farm.

CITY.

[illegible]—Mr Jos. [illegible] Photographer for the U S Geological Surveying party about to visit the snow mountains of the Cascades went up the Columbia on Saturday. A note from him written at the Dalles Saturday [illegible] that the party [illegible] started for Mount Hood yesterday morning with one pack mule. Mr [illegible] making seven men stopped at the Cascades Saturday [illegible]. He has [illegible] several years in this employment [illegible] the next steamer to visit the [illegible]. He will go out on the same errand. Mr R is [illegible] Sierra Nevadas [illegible] introduced the Ramie Plant [illegible] into California. In a postscript to his note Mr [illegible] relates how a buck swimming across the river in front of the [illegible] created considerable excitement among the passenger shootists. Jo [illegible] among the revolver [illegible] but he says the [illegible] his hand with the buck he had raised his flag in [illegible] triumph on the back, and was making excellent time for the interior.

COUNTY COURT—HAMILTON JUDGE.—Proceedings of Monday Sept 5th. Ellen McQuade was appointed guardian of her two minor children, and steps were taken preliminary to applying their real property to their support and education.

Mrs. Colly was appointed administratrix of her deceased husband's estate.

The name of —— Kadem was changed to Barbis.

The case of —— vs Ferrara for damages for assault and battery was argued on the pleadings, and set for trial to day.

In the matter of Thomas Kearney administrator of his deceased wife's estate, an order was made authorizing the sale of real estate.

The suit of McNiff vs O'Neill was dismissed by plaintiff.

Two judgments by default for small amounts, were taken against Tomlinson of Sandy precinct.

CURTIS' LIFE OF DANIEL WEBSTER.—Mrs. C A. Stanton is now in the city canvassing for the Life of Daniel Webster, an article on which will be found in the editorial columns of the OREGONIAN to-day. She is also canvassing for another important book entitled "The Court Circles of the Republic or the Beauties and Celebrities of the Nation." This book is "an illustration of life and society in Washington under eighteen Presidents describing the social features of the successive administrations from Washington to Grant; the drawing room circles, the prominent men and leading ladies, the brilliant belles and distinguished visitors, the principal entertainments, fashionable styles of dress, manners, etiquette, anecdotes, incidents, etc etc, illustrated with original portraits splendidly engraved on steel, by Mrs E F Ellet."

GERMAN SANITARY FUND ENTERTAINMENT.—Thursday evening the 8th inst, there will be an entertainment at Oro Fino Theater for the benefit of the German Sanitary Fund. The volunteers for the occasion are numerous, numbering among them the gentlemen comprising the German Glee Club, several musical professors, the 23d Infantry Band, and the ladies and gentlemen of the Bates Dramatic Company. The bill will be instrumental and vocal music—the German National Hymn being one of the pieces to be sung—and to conclude with the splendid little comedy of "Mr and Mrs. Peter White."

SHOOTING DOGS.—There was some nervousness among residents of the region of Park street yesterday morning about 3 o clock, on account of the firing of several guns or pistols. There had been firing also just before the fire alarm the evening before. After some inquiry yesterday, we learned that the firing was done by some of the [illegible] of the neighborhood, who were shooting at troublesome dogs. If a "mitrailleur" were fired so as to sweep down Park or Seventh streets, the crop of dead dogs wouldn't be less than twenty bushels to the acre.

U S CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, J.—Monday, Sept 5th.

Ordered that the further calling of the docket for the term be postponed until the 26th inst.

[illegible] C Bronaugh admitted to the bar.

Adjourned till Tuesday at 10 A M.

CORRECTION CORRECTED.—The colored people's festival for the benefit of their pastor, will take place this Tuesday, evening. That is what we intended to say yesterday morning when we attempted to correct the error of a former announcement. As will be seen, however, by reference to advertisement in case of the non arrival of the steamer to day, the festival will be postponed until Thursday evening for want of ice.

RAILROAD IRON.—It is understood that the ship Idaho which sailed for Portland yesterday, was dispatched before the regular time, for the purpose of supplying railroad iron to enable the company to build the road at once to the [illegible] depot. She will bring 400 tons—more than [illegible] to complete that section of the road; and if she arrive Friday as may be reasonable expected, the road will be done early next week.

THANKS.—The members of the Apollo Band who were the recipients of a benefit Saturday evening, wish to express their thanks to Misses Annie and Minnie Pixley, Ingles Mrs Pixley, Messrs Vinson, Melville, Clinton, Kearney and [illegible] and the 23d Infantry Band who assisted at the benefit. The Apollo boys are much gratified with the result of the benefit.

BAKED HORSE.—As soon as Mr Risley's horse was got out of the burning stable Sunday evening he was turned loose. After the fire was over the animal could not be found. Yesterday he was recovered and found to have been so much scorched that the hair on one side had mostly fallen off. It was very near a case of baked horse.

THE "OLD CORNER CIGAR STORE."—The place at the corner of Washington and Front streets, so long known as the "Old Corner Cigar Store," having been evacuated lately by Mr Ostheim has been rented by Mr Robert King who proposes to put in a fancy glass front and to open a first-class saloon.

PORTLAND CRAFT AHEAD.—Mr Charles Ta[illegible], who recently launched a fine boat at this city, called the Owl has just returned from a trip with her to the mouth of the river. He reports that he tried her speed with the winner in the Astoria yacht race of last season and came out victorious.

HATS.—We call attention to the advertisement of J C Meussdorffer & Bro who offer for sale a lot of new styles of Hats. The most fashionable hats now worn in San Francisco are the "Parisian," the "Cavendish" and "The Twenty Dollar Hat" all of which can be seen at Meussdorffer's.

DOG LICENSES DUE—LOOK OUT FOR YOUR DOGS.—The owners of dogs have been notified that licenses for keeping such nuisances are now due. The Marshal desires us to say that on and after to-day Charley Lawrence will be on the war path, and collarless dogs will be in peril.

Adjourned to Monday next.

CELL FOR FEMALE PRISONERS.—An improvement to the county jail which has long been needed but which it is hoped may never be used—the construction of a cell suitable for the occupation of women—has been ordered by the County Court.

ANOTHER WITNESS.—We learned yesterday that another person already saw the man leap over the fence from Mr Risley's stable just as the fire broke out Sunday evening and run through Mr Thomas' yard into Park street.

ALASKA TIMES.—We understand that the only newspaper establishment in Alaska will cease to issue a paper this month and the materials will be removed to Seattle W T. This will leave the Alaskans without a journal.

REV MR ELIOT HEARD FROM.—A letter has been received from Rev Mr Eliot, written from Hampden Beach where he says he shall remain for several weeks, for the benefit of his health.

OREGON

W T Wilson, of Ohio, is on his way from England to Eugene City with a lot of Cotswold sheep, which he proposes to sell. He will probably be there early in October

The Eugene Journal says that land in Lane county has rapidly advanced in value during the last three years, and farms which could have been purchased four or five years ago for $3 to $5 per acre are now selling at $15 to $20 per acre

From the Eugene Journal of Saturday We are informed that Surveyor General Applegate has let surveying contracts this week to Messrs John W Meldrum J B David and Newman each for $5 000 being the largest amount which can be let to one man

The Statesman says that information has been received at the office of Superintendent of Indian Affairs that Capt Knapp heretofore in charge of Klamath Agency has been recalled The Agency is to be turned over to Mr Meacham who will manage and conduct it until further orders

The Statesman of Sunday has this The cause of the detention of the steamer Albany on the last trip up was that she struck a snag that caused a leak which required to be stopped before she could come on After this was repaired she came as far as the rapids a short distance below town where she got aground and remained a couple of hours, finally reaching Salem at half past one in the morning

The Albany Register says there was a fair attendance at the recent railroad meeting at that place Upon the vote being taken the meeting was unanimous for accepting the note proposition of Mr Holladay in lieu of the subscription papers issued some time since Each subscriber on those papers gives his note for the amount subscribed payable thirty days after the road is finished to that city provided such completion is had by July 1871 It was the general feeling that Mr Holladay is coming out of his way at considerable extra expense and against the wishes of those who would fain see Albany left out in the cold in making our city a point on his road and that the $50 000 asked for is nothing more than his just due for so doing

THE great railroad era has dawned upon this State The locomotive whistle is already heard in our midst The North Pacific railroad have a regiment of engineers and surveyors in the field and will soon have thousands of men constructing the road Hundreds of new settlers are arriving every month to fill up our State and develop her resources. But no matter how many come, KOHN & FRANK will be ready for them with all kinds of Clothing and Staple goods They are constantly receiving fresh supplies by every steamer so their stock cannot be exhausted. Call and see them at their old stand on Front street

False Pretenses

The vast and continually increasing sales of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless nostrums for the most popular preparation in the world These imposters hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities of its manufacture, these petty attempts to wing in the interest trash by false representations are of little consequence to its proprietors They are however an insult to the victimized If for example at this season when a real invigorant is greatly needed the sufferer from general debility indigestion bilious ness or nervous weakness is coaxed into using a washy trashy compound without any medicinal virtue instead of the sovereign specific in which the finest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded It is the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him why should the invalid take a leap in dark.

The Science of War.

DEFECTIVE ORGANIZATION OF THE FRENCH ARMY.

"For twenty years," says Arsene Houssaye in a Paris paper, "nobody in France has studied war. Everything has been [illegible] particially, whilst the Prussians are first in the military art."

The French have the military schools at Paris and St. Cyr, a school for the education of staff officers at the capital, and a cavalry school at Saumur. The four schools, however, are not only carried on according to the old routine of the Empire, but thousands of officers are every day appointed from the ranks with no other knowledge of tactics than those which they practically learn from the older corporals and sergeants in their regiments. There is an amount of ignorance in the corps of officers which contributes immensely to their subordinate condition in French society, and which really would be intolerable if the French trooper in general did not make up for his ignorance by his great urbanity and bravery.

But this is not the essential point of M. Arsene Houssaye's criticism. What he alludes to is the entire absence of a scientific treatment of military matters in France since the times of Carnot. A nation scarcely ever produces two geniuses like Carnot in two continuous generations. When in 1793 he entered his duties in the Committee of Public Safety, the armies were disorganized and unruly; there were no funds and no provisions; enemies had invaded France in every direction; the insurgent Vendeans were successful; Lyons was resisting a beleaguering army and Toulon had just been delivered by treason to the English. And yet the genius of Carnot succeeded so well that the French called him the organizer of victory. He was a tactician of the highest ability, and it was he who planned the admirable campaign of 1796, the success which of which was secured in Italy by Bonaparte.

It is upon this great science that the French tacticians lived all the time since the defeat of Waterloo; and just as they permitted the English to eclipse them in natural sciences, because they lived on the glory of Jouffroy, St. Hilaire and Cuvier, just so they have permitted the Prussians to surpass them in the scientific reorganization of their military establishment, because they believed that in the tactics of M. Carnot military science had been exhausted.

After 1866 the French became convinced of being far behind the Prussians. It was not only the effect of the needle-gun which startled them, but they felt that the victories of the Prussians were principally due to the organization of their army. They at once went to work by the introduction of a new breech-loader, and by the organization of the garde mobile to bring up the French army to the standard of the Prussian. Gen. Niel was entrusted with the elaboration and the execution of a new plan. It is now evident how incompletely the Prussian organization was imitated by Gen. Niel, or, to use a more correct expression, how poorly the Prussian system was adapted to the French war establishment. General Niel never discovered the principal merit of the Prussian organization. He placed it in the enrollment of immense numbers of men, while it is essentially in the almost absolute equality of reserve corps with those in active service. The Prussians now have not only as many troops, and more than the French, but her soldiers, from the first to the last, are cast into the mould, and the battalions of reserve are as available and ready for service at a first call as the veterans. Nobody doubts that the French may be able to put a million of men in the field, but at the same time it is known that one-half of this number are mere recruits, without any drill in the management of the new arms. It is even palpable that the commissariat and the number of Chassepot guns is not in any available proportion to a levy en masse, and that if the French army were raised to a million of soldiers, they might starve in the field, and in the best case be armed with old muskets which are entirely worthless, in any fight against the long range fire-arms. The French in one word attempted to accomplish in a short time what the Prussians had done during an uninterrupted study of forty-five years. While the French have been defeating inferior armies to their own in Russia and in Italy, and making demoralizing expeditions to China and Mexico, the Prussians were silently perfecting a military organization which now proves to be the result of the application of every principle of modern science that could possibly be used for the improvement of arms, tactics, and the mobilization of troops.

The Price.

[From the New Haven Palladium.]

One of Victor Hugo's finest poems pictures the first Napoleon sleeping in the tomb by the waters of the Seine, while before him pass, in awful vision, the disastrous events of his marvelous career. His troubled sleep is broken by the phantoms of the army he led to Moscow. Again, he sees the conflagrations of the city, the horrors of the retreat, his soldiers sinking to death on the wastes covered with snow, or perishing beneath the icy waters of the Beresina. And as the vision flits before him he wakes from his sleep and asks "Is this the punishment?" But a voice replies: "Not yet!" Again he slumbers to be aroused again by the phantom of his army perishing at Waterloo, by the vision of the Cossacks watering their horses in the Seine, by the pale image of his only child dying in Austria, by the spectre of himself chained to the rock at St. Helena. And each time he asks "Is this the punishment?" and still the answer comes "Not yet." At last, before the sleeping Emperor rises the figure of Napoleon 3d, and then he knows that to have his name and crown worn by such a man is the punishment for his crime in having grasped imperial power and slain the Republic in whose service he had become illustrious. Could the poet have foreseen the events passing in France to-day, he might have added a still more striking climax to his verse.

With a systematized organization supposed to have been the first in the world, the soldiers are left without provisions. After the country has been burdened with heavy taxation to keep up an efficient and powerful army, it finds itself at the first shock called upon to rise to the last man to help its soldiers in the field. What has been done with the money which the Legislature has so liberally voted for the army during the last ten years? This is a question which will have to be answered, and we shall be surprised if it does not appear that large sums of it have gone into the pockets of the hangers-on of the Imperial Court. After the battle of Solferino it was discovered that the money intended for the support of the Austrian army had been appropriated to their own uses by those to whom it was entrusted, and that the great fortresses of Italy were left in a defenceless condition. An official of the highest rank committed suicide, and several of the leading military men were punished by the tribunals. Napoleon the Third mounted the throne by treachery and corruption, aided by reckless men of the worst character. They had to be paid for their services. Men have been advanced to power solely on account of their devotion to the Emperor, and without any regard to their private character. Is it improbable that they have squandered the funds entrusted to their care, and that this accounts for the unprepared condition in which France, which was believed to be so strong, finds herself.

The State of Massachusetts and the Kingdom of Belgium have the largest extent of railway in proportion to territorial area of all the separate political communities in the world; the first having a mile of railroad to 5 27 square miles of area; the second, 6 69 square miles of area to each mile of road.

Foreign Dynasties

The Philadelphia Press thus discourses on this head:

When Napoleon objected to Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern as a candidate for the throne of Spain, because he was a German, he virtually ignored the fact that every crowned head in Europe traces his descent from aliens and foreigners.

France has Louis Napoleon for her Emperor, the founder of whose dynasty, Gen. Bonaparte, was Corsican by birth and Italian by race.

Victoria, Queen of England, reigns by virtue of her descent from a petty German prince who had married a grand-daughter of James I, a Scotchman by birth, his mother having been Mary Stuart.

In Spain, the Emperor Charles V. was a German by his father's side. His dynasty ceased in 1700 from want of a male heir, and a French prince became King of Spain, with the title of Philip V. Thus the hated Bourbon line, now nominally represented by the little boy in Paris who calls himself Alphonso XII, was established in Spain.

The King of Italy can show a descent only from the Counts of Savoy, and thus is actually rather French than Italian.

Christian of Denmark, who is King by arrangement rather than by popular election, belongs to a German family long settled in Holstein.

Sweden is governed by the grandson of a French lawyer, who having risen, under Napoleon I. to the rank of Field Marshal, and Prince of Ponte Corvo, was elected Crown Prince of Sweden, and finally succeeded to the crown.

The King of Greece has no Hellenic blood in his veins, being simply one of the sons of the King of Denmark, who is not himself a Dane.

Belgium has for her monarch the son of Leopold a petty German prince, by the daughter of a French princess. He is the grandson of Louis Philippe, of France.

Strictly counting up, the only monarches of Europe governed by native princes are Turkey, Portugal, Holland, Wurtemberg, Saxony and Bavaria. All the rest of the European sovereigns are of decided alien origin. Even in Egypt the Khedive, as Ismael Pasha is called, comes from a Greek family. Yet, whatever their descent, the sovereigns, whether of foreign or native descent, become national in their respective localities where they reign. Louis Napoleon certainly thinks more of France than of Italy, whence his family came, and it has always been the credit of Louis Bonaparte, his father, that he became a Dutchman in heart and soul as soon as he was made King of Holland. Because his imperial and imperious brother accused him of neglecting his interests, and the result was that, finding it was expected that he should govern Holland only as a satrap, the mere lieutenant of Napoleon, he took off his crown, laid down his scepter and retired into private life. There is no reason for thinking that if Spain had adopted Leopold, of Hohenzollern, he would have governed that country as a German Prince. His father-in-law, of the Saxe-Cobourg family, became so good a Portuguese after his marriage with Queen Donna Maria De Gloria, that the lament in that country now is that he, not his son, is not the present sovereign.

THE RIVERSIDE

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON.

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened, and a large number of Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc., etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is, with one exception, the Portland Homestead Association, the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes, and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands, consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals as shareholders, and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them), the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 71 blocks, 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles, and 50 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 50 fractional lots. The 50 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that everything is co-operative, and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property, by some chance, should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself, but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood, and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two, it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share, payable with the first installment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month; so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 50 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist. Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes, and one homestead—the "Riverside" just south of East Portland—has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a trifle above the other portion of the H, but is still forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and the Wallamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with light fir timber. A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, with an avenue between them, connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described) with that on the east. This last tract of land is in a beautiful little valley, which is now under a high state of cultivation. Through its whole length runs a trout brook the water of which is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the Association propose to have water conveyed through pipes to every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.

PROPOSALS.

Proposals for Trees and Shrubs for National Military Cemeteries.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., 17th August, 1870.

PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLYING TREES AND Shrubs for ornamental planting of the National Cemeteries are invited from nurseries and gardeners in good standing.

The trees and shrubs should be securely packed and delivered at the railroad station most convenient to the garden or nursery. Bills and bills of lading, properly [illegible], to be furnished.

The freight will be paid by the United States, and the bills will be settled upon receipt of the trees and shrubs at the places to which they may be consigned.

The orders will be given by the officer in charge of national cemeteries in this office upon estimates or requisitions from local officers.

It is suggested that the most convenient form of proposal will be a printed catalogue, with such discounts on the ordinary prices [illegible] kinds of plants as the proprietor may be willing to offer.

Purchases will be made wherever most advantageous to the United States upon the basis of the proposals thus received.

There are about eighty (80) national military cemeteries scattered over the whole United States, and some planting will probably be needed in each of them.

Proposals should be sealed and addressed to the Quartermaster General's Office, marked "Proposals for Trees and Shrubs," and they will be opened at noon on the 15th September, 1870.

M. C. MEIGS,
Quartermaster General,
a19dot Brevet Major General, U. S. A.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of attaching shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It relieves the Porches so as to be entirely free from the rattle [illegible] which so often disturbs [illegible]. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be changed in an instant, and is entirely safe and secure.

It is very cheap [illegible] any [illegible] or other vehicle now in use, and with [illegible] expense. We have [illegible] to use this new [illegible] in all cases. We [illegible] Patent, [illegible]
